

Work Placement Position

Regional Development Australia - Murray

The RDA – Murray is one of 55 regions defined by the Federal Government. The RDAs have been established to co-ordinate and facilitate regional development. The Murray region extends from Khancoban in the south-east following the Murray River for 1400km to Wentworth in the south-west of NSW and to the border with South Australia. The region comprises 10 Local Government Areas covering 87,738 square kilometres and is home to approximately 114,581 people with predicted growth to over 143,000 people by 2036.

Historically the region is part of the NSW ‘food bowl’ with much of its economic activity generated from grazing, broad acre farming and irrigated horticulture. More recently, there has developed niche markets in agriculture, horticulture, livestock breeding and small-scale, value-added food manufacturing.

RDA-Murray is based in Albury with an office in Deniliquin and has 4 staff members. It undertakes a range of activities and projects that support business, government and the community in regional economic and social development.
